Your evening guide to Rialzo

Hello, Friends of Meridian!

It's nearly "Post-Time" when we'll be in our seats ready for the "Run for Rialzo," our eleventh charity benefit gala, racing to raise funds for our spectrum of addictions services.

Our theme "Go, Baby, Go!" captures the energy and excitement we all have for cheering on all our Addictions and Recovery Programs, now more than ever through this pandemic when people have needed our help the most.

Meridian Health Services is helping win the race against addictions all over our state. From expanding our Maternal Treatment Program (MTP) into neighboring communities, to adding two new residential Addictions and Recovery Centers, Meridian is indeed competing to win, along with the help of our Governor, whose efforts are featured here as well.

Get your hats and bow ties ready for a little "Rialzo Living," a lifestyle we hope you'll embrace not only on May 14 as you donate, but each and every day as your gifts help cheer on people recovering from addiction.

The echoes of "Go, Baby, Go" will be heard year round as we strive to help make our communities healthier.

Thanks for being part of the Meridian family,

Addictions and Recovery Programs

Meridian Health Services' broad-reaching spectrum of addictions and recovery programs begin with infants in the Maternal Treatment Program (MTP), where mothers enter a recovery program aimed at stabilizing a young family. The program is an outpatient treatment program that provides care and support to drug addicted mothers and their newborn babies suffering from withdrawal. The program services are designed to use whole-person health methods to prevent, educate, treat and provide community support for our patients. This program was born over 6 years ago and has already changed the trajectory of nearly 200 women's lives and their families. This program helps change lifestyles of mothers in crisis, which in turn improves the outcomes for children born into addiction.

“As the health needs have shifted, so have we,” said Hank Milius, Meridian's president and chief executive officer. “Addiction is a scourge on our country, on our state and in our county. Not only must we raise awareness community-wide about the emerging treatments for addictions, we also have to be able to provide those treatments ourselves.”

Meridian's continuum of care now includes a residential treatment based program for women in need right here in Muncie, with the conversion of Eber House to a women's focused group recovery home, called Meridian Women's Recovery Home. When applicable, these women may have children (up to 3 months old) live with them while they are in this recovery program. Women participating in the recovery home also have access to Meridian's integrated services including: Medication Assisted Treatment (MAT), Maternal Treatment Program (MTP), Women's Health, Primary Medical Care, Pediatric Care, Addictions and Mental Health services and supervised visitation with their children (not staying with them).

Additionally, Meridian has a Women's Recovery Home in Lafayette, Home with Hope – Hope Apartments. This is the only facility of its kind in the Lafayette area providing a continuum of care, often following primary treatment for addictions recovery, for women age 18 and older. These women receive consistent monitoring, a structured living environment, case management, group and individual counseling, recovery coaching, participation in the 12-step program, random drug and alcohol screenings, daily accountability, and an opportunity to seek employment and work in the community. We hope our patients learn how to live their lives free from addiction and substance use and re-enter their communities, by providing an environment conducive to long-term recovery.

MERIDIAN SERVED OVER 6,000 ADDICTIONS PATIENTS LAST YEAR

Meridian has two Addictions and Recovery Centers (ARC), one in West Lafayette and the other in Richmond. ARC provides two levels of care: residential detoxification and residential treatment. Residential detoxification lasts approximately three to five days, followed by residential treatment that provides clients the necessary structured support for recovery. Patients receive 24-hour clinical care while in a residential, therapeutic environment, and treated through holistic “whole-person” health methods. ARC patients are cared for by licensed and certified providers specializing in treating those seeking recovery substance use disorder(s).

Meridian's continuum of care also includes Intensive Outpatient Program and Aftercare Addiction Services, Medication Assisted Treatment, and traditional outpatient services. Our Intensive Outpatient Program and Aftercare Addiction Services are divided into two distinct phases to provide effective long-term treatment. First, an individual will participate in Intensive Outpatient Treatment (IOT) focusing on addiction treatment that occurs a minimum of 9 hours per week for at least 6 weeks. Following completion, an individual will participate in an 8-12 week aftercare program. This is a weekly group therapy program focused on long-term recovery.

In the last four years, Meridian is serving 40 percent more patients with addiction needs. "In the medication-assisted treatment program, we've gone from serving 67 patients to nearly 900 patients using Vivtrol or Suboxone as a substitute," said Milius.

Meridian also offers a number of traditional outpatient services, such as primary medical care through MeridianMD, psychiatric evaluation, medication management, substance use disorder assessments, individual and group counseling, peer recovery support, support groups, aftercare services, family support, and addiction evaluation.

In the last five years, Meridian has launched a statewide speaker series, tapping experts to discuss addiction. First, there was investigative reporter and award-winning author Sam Quinones, whose book "Dreamland: America's Tale of Opiate Epidemic" recounts the path of opioids and how it overtook the country.

Additionally, Meridian has welcomed Ryan Leaf, 1998 NFL top draft pick, and Chris Herren, a former NBA basketball player. Ryan and Chris both shared their personal testimonies on their struggles with addiction showing us that addiction knows no boundaries.

Through poignant guest speakers immersed in experiences related to identified topics and a discussion panel following, we enable and engage in conversation and discuss potential collaborative opportunities where people within the community can work together to build healthier outcomes for those in need.

"One of my favorite quotes," says Milius, "is by American anthropologist, Margaret Mead who said: 'Never doubt that a group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it is the only thing that ever has.'"

While Meridian cannot be all things to all people, its continuum of addictions care continues to grow and meet the needs of the communities it serves.

Spirit of Meridian

Governor Eric Holcomb is the recipient of Meridian Health Services' Rialzo XI Spirit of Meridian Award, a recognition that pays tribute to an individual who demonstrates proactive actions in promoting healthier communities. The annual recognition is awarded to someone who has contributed significantly to the overall health and well-being of people and somebody who goes above and beyond the call of duty.

"We could think of no one who has had more impact in just a short period of time on the overall health of our state," said Hank Milius, Meridian's president and chief executive officer.

Governor Holcomb has identified healthcare as a major initiative in his legislative agenda and specifically focused on attacking the opioid crisis as one of his five pillars of accountability. Holcomb, on his first day in office in 2017, appointed the state's first drug czar, tackling addiction and the state's anti-drug efforts.

"In large part, the governor's priorities mirror the ongoing work at Meridian. His support of these initiatives and demonstrating clear achievements made him our first choice for this annual award," Milius said.

Governor Holcomb continues to lead the state through the COVID-19 pandemic. During his State of the State address, he announced that nearly 55 percent of all Hoosiers have been vaccinated and he discussed the new Next Level Regional Recovery program. This program is intended to help the state's economy recover from the financial impact of the pandemic.

Holcomb reinforces his healthcare initiatives in the Next Level Agenda, which includes adding more recovery housing for Hoosiers coping with substance use disorder, more mental healthcare services, tools to assess substance use disorder in pregnancy, and prioritizes reducing neonatal abstinence syndrome.

The governor's agenda also includes expanding recovery housing for people in recovery fighting opioid use. In addition, Holcomb's efforts to influence Indiana's infant mortality rate are showing signs of working. Indiana's infant mortality rate fell at the highest rate in six years.

The award will be given to Holcomb at Rialzo XI, Meridian's annual charity gala, which is May 14 at the Scheumann Family Indoor Practice Facility – next to Scheumann Stadium – in Muncie, Indiana.
